Of the above applications, twenty-four have been made by wives and sixteen by husbands. Every conceivable reason is assigned for the applications, and should all of these cases be granted, we shall unmake wives and husbands about as fast as we make them. At any rate, it is doing what may be called a fair business in the "connubial felicity" line.

A day or so since the conductor and driver of one of our city railroad cars got themselves into considerable trouble by being rather too officious. A passenger named Dallas, who it is alleged was sick, wanted to have the window pen, and the conductor persisted in having it down. The consequence was a rupture between them, which resulted in the ejecting of the passenger from the car with so much violence as to cut two arteries in his right arm. by ramming it through the window, and otherwise injuring the man, so that he fell down in the street, and had to be carried to his home. Dallas is still in bed, and fears are entertained that the injured arm will have to be amputated. The conductor and driver of the car have been arrested, and are held to await the result of the injuries. It may have been that the conductor was right in ejecting the passenger from the car, but the violence used on the occasion was uncalled for.

A man was found in the street on Tuesday evening who was supposed to be drunk. He was conveyed to the Station House, where he was found dead next morning. Papers upon his person give the information that he was a discharged soldier of Company D, 11th Pennsylvania Reserves. His name is Daniel Campbell, and he is unknown in this city.

Ristori opens here at the Opera House, on or about the 8th of next month. She is fashionable, and Pittsburg is crazy to see her.

The accomplished actor, Mr. Edwin Adams, well known and universally admired in your city, opened at the Opera House last Monday evening, with "Hamlet." The house was full, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, and Mr. Adams received quite an ovation. On Tuesday night he gave us "Macbeth." The house was full, but I am inclined to think the audience did not like his acting in the rôle. Such pieces are, I think, a little too heavy for this gentleman. Mr. Leake, as "Macduff." was excellent. He has a fine voice, and knows how to use it. The acting of Miss Annie Waite, as "Lady Macbeth," was wanting in spirit, and her remarks were, in many cases, inaudible even to those sitting close to the stage. Mr. Sutton, as "Banquo," looked well and acted well: he has one fault, of sufficient import to bear correcting, namely, the grinding out of the letter r wherever it occurs. To-morrow night Mr. Adams appears in Wild Oats. He opens in your city, at the Arch, on the 8th of April.

Mr. Henderson, the lessee of the Opera House, is a live manager, and spares neither expense nor trouble to give our citizens a fine entertainment. Mr. Harry Overington plays his part with commendable zeal, and his politeness and kindness are appreciated by our theatre-goers.

The "Varieties," under Fred. Aims, is doing well, with Mr. McFarland as the leading dramatist, and a large ballet troupe, under Professor G. W. Smith, of your city. Miss De Vere is the star of the ballet troupe, supported by Miss Summerfield, Miss Kelmyer, and other well-known Philadelphians.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Walnut Mr. E. L. Davenport takes his farewell benefit, and appears in three of his best characters. True to the Core will be played, together with David Garrick and Who Killed Cock Robin?
